QUESTION REFERENCES

Following each question is a reference for finding the answer, making it easy for this study guide to be used.

The number after each question refers to the page and paragraph in the book Counsels on Stewardship. Example 14.2 refers to page 14, paragraph 2.

Any portion of a paragraph that continues to the next page is still considered as the last paragraph of the previous page. The first paragraph of a page is the first one that is indented.

SUGGESTIONS FOR READING THE BOOK AND ANSWERING QUESTIONS

1. The main goal of this study guide is to motivate its user to read the entire book. Therefore, read each chapter in the book. Click on the hyperlinked title of the chapter in this study guide to read it online.
2. Each section includes several chapters of the book. Read only one chapter at a time. Then answer the questions for that chapter, making sure to also take into consideration the context.
3. The reference following each question refers you to the page and paragraph where the answer will be found.
4. Write your answer in the boxes provided.

SUGGESTIONS FOR GROUP STUDIES

1. Have each person read one section from Counsels on Stewardship and answer the questions in the study guide at home, and then bring the book to class.
2. Review the section and check the answers for the section studied.
3. Assign the next section, then survey it to stimulate interest. Individuals, families, church institutional offices (daily morning worship), church services, prayer meetings, small groups, marriage preparation classes, colleges, and academy classes may profitably use this study guide.

PREFACE

My first years of ministry were extremely frustrating. I was not naturally gifted for the task, and so neither the church members nor I were satisfied with my performance. On three occasions, I seriously considered returning my credentials to the conference and looking for something else to do.

Oblivious to what was happening to me during this challenging time, my father told me something that inspired me to put my whole life back on the right track. He said, “You know, there are many pastors in your conference. Even though you are not the dullest of them, you are certainly not the brightest.” Such a statement could easily have offended or discouraged me, but he was saying out loud what I already knew. I was far from being the best or most gifted pastor in my conference. My failure was evident not only as a pastor but in all areas of my life, including my marriage.

“But would you like to prosper in your ministry and to become successful in the ministry and life?” my father kindly asked. He got my attention. Of course, I would love to thrive, but it seemed utterly impossible! “Then, remember 2 Chronicles 20:20,” he said. “The Bible says, ‘Believe in the LORD your God, and you shall be established; believe His prophets, and you shall prosper’” (NKJV).

“So if you want to prosper,” he continued, “read with all your heart, and lean not on your

in all your ways
acknowledge Him, and He shall direct your paths. Do not all you can from the inspired writings the Bible and the Spirit of Prophecy. You may begin by reading about the area in which you are working right now. Read those writings regularly, and they will help you greatly, not only in your ministry but in every area of your life.”

He emphasized the importance of regularly reading the writings of Ellen G. White, God’s last-day messenger, taking them seriously as inspired by God, and putting them into practice. “Those messages have nothing to do with her, a simple vessel,” he said, referring to Ellen White. “But by studying them as one who searches for great riches, you will be able to have ‘an extra eye,’ seeing further and higher than others. God wants to impart His wisdom to you, and that wisdom is almost always countercultural, a nonsense for the worldlings. If you follow it, even if you are not the brightest, the Lord will perform miracles through you. Read everything. Don’t miss a single word. Mark the new concepts, underline them, and keep them in your heart,” he said.

I look back on that moment as a crossroad in my life. In a candid but loving way, my father told me precisely what I needed to hear. Moved by God’s Spirit, he provided me with the very tools necessary to build up my—or anyone’s—life. I clearly understood that my fallen, sinful condition is the greatest reason for my failure as a person. But by God’s mercy, and through Jesus’ death, I don’t need to be the brightest to succeed. I need to keep confessing my sins and grasping the hand of Jesus, the Brightest of the brightest, and humbly follow His guidance, revealed through the prophetic voice. “Trust in the LORD with all your heart and lean not on your own understanding; in all your ways acknowledge Him, and He shall direct your paths. Do not be wise in your own eyes; fear the LORD and depart from evil. It will be health to your flesh, and strength to your bones” (Prov. 3:5-8, NKJV).

I also understood that the prophets themselves, canonical or not, men or women, weren’t more important than any other humans. But if their messages originate from God, these writings, once recognized as such, should have precedence over all other theological or scientific knowledge, not because of the prophet, but because of Who sent them. They will enable the reader to discern truth and falsehood, treasure, and trash.

Another thing that I discovered was that lack of wisdom might even become a great advantage. First, if you succeed, you will never be able to brag about yourself. Also, it will lead you to pray more and depend more on God. Conversely, those who see themselves as brilliant may be more tempted to rely on self to prosper, despising inspired writings.

So, following my father’s advice, I began reading Ellen G. White’s books daily, immediately after my Bible and the Sabbath School quarterly. I am still following the practice of reading the Bible and her writings daily before starting my work or reading any other secular or religious literature.

Throughout my life, the Lord has placed me alongside very merciful, patient, but bright people, to whom He provided the abilities that I lack. Even though I’m still searching for that “extra eye,” I must recognize that my spiritual life and discernment have significantly improved. And I believe that part of the Christian life is to keep yearning for that eye that Solomon calls wisdom, so that we may see more, interpreting life events from the higher perspective of a “seer.” This is the kind of mindset God will convey to those who search the writings of the Spirit of Prophecy (the Bible and Ellen G. White’s writings).

I started by studying Ellen G. White’s books that were considered more directly related to my assignment as a district pastor at that time: Evangelism, Gospel Workers, etc. But my father also told me that a district pastor needs to develop a broad vision of God’s work, being familiar with every branch of the work related to His church. So, I also added books to my reading list that I was not naturally inclined to read. It was during that time that I first read (can you guess what book?)— Counsels on Stewardship, which is a compilation!¹

¹ For those who have some concerns about reading compilations, fearing the risk of taking a text out of context, I would simply suggest checking the context, which is fully available

Who would read this book for the sake of personal growth? I would not have if my father had not had that conversation with me. But once I started reading it, my whole mindset began to change! How blessed I was by this reading! Even my marriage and the way I raised my children were positively affected. I discovered, for instance, that “selfishness is the essence of depravity”² and may bring discord to families, nations, and the church. I also learned that “seeking the good of others is the way in which true happiness can be found.”³

Then I was unexpectedly called to work as the stewardship director in the Santa Catarina Conference in south Brazil. Who dreams of being a stewardship director?

using the Ellen G. White Writings app. It is also helpful to remember that it was her desire, as expressed in her last will and testament, that compilations from her manuscripts be printed. For more information about the reliability and usefulness of Ellen G. White’s compilations, see Alberto R. Timm, “Compilations and Condensations,” in <https://www.adventistworld.org/compilations-and-condensations/>, (retrieved in May 26, 2021). See also Herbert E. Douglass, Messenger of the Lord: The Prophetic Ministry of Ellen G. White (Nampa, Idaho: Pacific Press Pub. Assn., 1998), pp. 528-533 and 571.

² Ellen G. White, Counsels on Stewardship, (Washington, D.C.: Review and Herald Pub. Assn., 1940), p. 24.

I had never before considered that possibility, and I had no idea what to do. In addition, no one gave me any orientation or even a job description. I received an office, a desk, a chair, a computer, a monitor, a shared administrative assistant, a travel budget, and that was all. It kept me scratching my head for three months, wondering what a stewardship director was supposed to do.

Then my father’s words came again to my mind: “Believe His prophets, and you shall prosper” (2 Chronicles 20:20, NKJV). I clearly understood that by calling me to this position, God was inviting me to gain a more profound knowledge of His will in this area by reading His inspired words.

So I decided to reread the book Counsels on Stewardship and get to know its content better than anyone at that conference. I also understood that God expected me to practice its truths before teaching them to others. After all, how can someone lead others to a truth that he himself has not yet accepted and practiced?

I began reading Counsels on Stewardship regularly, every workday, before starting anything else in my office. I started underlining those passages that were interesting or challenging. During this process, I concluded that I would need to have daily contact with this book as long as I worked in that area.

As was the case with the Israelite kings in the past, those who occupy leadership roles today, at home or in the church, urgently need to read and maybe write down God’s words “all the days” of their lives (Deut. 17:19).

This study guide is the fruit of my daily experiences with the book Counsels on Stewardship over many years, as related above. For about 16 years I read it in Portuguese, and now, during the past six years, in English, forming very simple questions that could be answered by the paragraphs or phrases that I underlined in the book.

As you will see, this study guide is very simple. First, because I still lack that extra eye. Second, because this guide is not supposed to be an end in itself. Instead, it was created to motivate the reader to dig deeper, reading the entire book bit by bit, as one enjoys a rare delicacy. May the Lord bless you as I have been blessed by reading this and other Ellen G. White books.

3. What happens if someone transfers property to the children or to the partner to excuse himself or herself from advancing the cause? 334.2

"... the _____ of Heaven will surely follow." [curse]

God reads the purposes and intents of the hearts, and tries the motives of the children of men. His signal, visible displeasure may not be manifested as in the case of Ananias and Sapphira, yet in the end the punishment will in no case be lighter than that which was inflicted upon them. In trying to deceive men, they were lying to God. “The soul that sinneth, it shall die.”
