Chad, a landlocked country located in the heart of Africa, is home to the Bere Adventist Hospital - the only healthcare facility in the region. Drs. Olen and Danae Netteburg oversee it, along with their family. When parents dedicate their lives to serving as missionaries, their children are also missionaries.

Six-year-old Juniper has a soft spot for animals. She loves it when locals bring them to their compound—a cluster of houses surrounded by a wall. Mango trees abound in their compound, and during the mango season, they don't need dinner as they can pick the fruits from the trees. Together with her mom, she distributes baby clothes and blankets to new mothers while sharing the message of Jesus.

Eight-year-old Addison enjoys visiting nearby villages where shepherds and farmers live off the land. On Sabbaths, the family travels to remote villages to worship God under a large mango tree. There, they share Bible stories and songs with children and their parents.

Ten-year-old Zane loves to swim in the river during summer, but he had to change rivers after hippos took over their usual spot. Zane enjoys making things, especially bows and arrows. His Chadian friends are experts in making fantastic things out of trash, like cars and airplanes, and Zane is happy to share with his local friends how much Jesus loves them.

At just 13, Lyol has a unique perspective on life. She knows that her parents are dedicated healthcare professionals working tirelessly to care for the sick and keep the hospital running smoothly. But that's not all—her father homeschools Lyol and her siblings! Despite the severe nature of their work, Lyol and her family find joy and fulfillment in their daily activities, all while spreading the love of Jesus to those around them. With their unwavering commitment to obeying God, Lyol knows anything is possible.

CN. 07

Supporting missionaries and spreading God's message of love even in remote places, some of whom you have never heard of, is only possible because of the unity in the work of the church. When you give the Tithes and allow your offerings to be distributed as suggested by the Combined Offering Plan, you're not just helping to support Lyol and her family in their mission to share the good news of Jesus - you're also supporting at the same time over 400 missionary families around the globe, as well as Global Mission pioneers who are working tirelessly to bring hope to those in need. Remember that together, we do more, go farther, and go faster. Jesus is coming! May we put our desires last and God first.
