Let's see what Ellen G. White suggests (Education p. 238):

1. That parents and teachers should make the study of figures something practical very early in children's lives;
2. Children should learn through practice how to rightly use money.
3. This money may be supplied by the parents (as an allowance) or be earned by the child.
4. It should be used to purchase their clothing, books and other necessities.
5. They must be taught how to select and purchase those necessities.
6. They must keep an account of their expenses.

~~And maybe we may suggest that a new allowance should only be given if that account of expenses is presented.~~

If they are taught to put God first, they will choose [1] tithe and [2] Promise as the two first actions, after any new income is received! Then their [3] savings will be the next, all before any other expense may be met. It will lead them to a life of simplicity and frugality, more in line with a Christian lifestyle.

Ellen G. White also says that teaching those lessons at young age, will not only [a] encourage habits of benevolence, but will also [b] teach them how to give "not from the mere impulse of the moment... but regularly, systematically". (Education p. 238)
And will help them to remember Who is the source of their income, linking their hearts to the One who is the real Provider.

SC. 05

By providing an allowance, and this kind of education, parents are preparing their children not only to have a more successful life in this earth, but also the eternal life.

SC. 06

As you return your tithes and Promise, pray for the younger generations of the your church!

SC. 07

May we put our desires last and God first.
