Sebastian worked hard, and his skills improved quickly thanks to the One Year in Mission volunteers who served as his coaches. But through these volunteer missionaries, Sebastian also found Jesus and was eager to share his newfound faith with his parents.

According to Pastor Cabezas, leader of the Center's outreach programs, these volunteers are willing to give up their time and talents to serve others. Using Christ's methods, they offer workshops on cooking, language, and exercise classes that bring the community together. If you also want to become a volunteer in a church's sponsored missionary project, or if you are a leader in an official missionary project or institution and want to request a volunteer, you may access one or both of the following platforms:

- First, the Adventist Volunteer Service: <https://www.adventistvolunteers.org/#>. They focus on young people willing to volunteer one year of their lives to God's Mission.
- And, VividFaith: <https://vividfaith.com/>. VividFaith is a hub sponsored by the Adventist Church that gathers all opportunities for Mission around the world, ranging from volunteering options to full-time jobs.

But as important as going to the mission field is the support of God's mission. Thanks to those who regularly return their tithes and "Promise" (which is the regular and systematic offering), outreach organizations of the Adventist Church are leading people to Jesus around the world every day. Sebastian is thrilled that his family can now prepare to go to heaven together, and he knows that it's all thanks to the Life Hope Center and its volunteers. So today, as you return your Tithes and Promise, remember that you will also be making a difference in the lives of many families around the world, like Sebastian's. May we put our desires last and God first.
